

IPSO Pilot Arbitration Scheme: Arbitrator Panel

IPSO has worked with the Centre for Effective Dispute Resolution (CEDR) to approve a list of barristers for the Arbitrator Panel. CEDR will make a selection from the Panel when appointing an arbitrator to individual claims after the parties have agreed to arbitrate and paid the required fees to CEDR.

When making an appointment CEDR will take into account the complexity of the dispute, any disclosed conflict of interest, the availability of the barrister and any objections raised by the claimant or publisher regarding the appointment of a particular barrister from the Panel. However objections to the appointment of a particular barrister by either party will not automatically prevent the appointment of that barrister to the claim.

Each member of the Panel has been approved by IPSO to act as an arbitrator, having the necessary experience and expertise in media law to rule upon disputes entering the IPSO pilot scheme.

The following barristers have been approved by IPSO to be on the pilot scheme Arbitrator Panel:
