Independent Community News Service of the Year 2018

Introduction

Caerphilly Observer is published by Caerphilly Media Ltd, a local, independently-owned, media company. Richard Gurner, Caerphilly Observer's Editor and Publisher, is the company's sole director and owner.

We have a fortnightly print edition with a free circulation of 10,000 copies and a website that attracts 82,172 unique users a month generating 192,808 page impressions (ave 2020).

The website and print edition cover the Caerphilly County Borough unitary authority area.

Our editorial standards

We adhere to IPSO's Editor's Code of Practice, a copy of which is displayed prominently in our newsroom. Editorial staff are constantly reminded of the importance to operate within the code.

Editor and Publisher Richard Gurner is the person responsible for maintaining editorial standards and advises editorial staff on matters relating to the Editor's Code of Practice.

Where appropriate, we would seek the guidance of IPSO for advice if a situation arises where there is ambiguity surrounding the code.

Our approach to stories, their editorial justification, and how we gather information are constantly discussed with regular weekly editorial meetings supplementing a close working relationship between editorial staff.

Where we think there may be issues surrounding compliance with the Code, then we always consult it and consider any relevant points.

Complaints policy and procedure

Our complaints policy and procedure is published in full on our website at caerphilly.observer/complaints. An abridged version is also published in our print edition on page two. The IPSO logo is displayed in the footer of our website on every page and on page two of the printed edition.

The following wording appears on our website at caerphilly.observer/complaints.

Caerphilly Observer is regulated by the Independent Press Standards Organisation (IPSO) and adheres to the Editors' Code of Practice (www.ipso.co.uk/editors-code-of-practice).
